Prior to the year 1050 there was no such thing as a family name handed down from father to son. But when the fashion was once started we fancy that some man living in, or at the edge of a forest - "the Shire wood" - was given the poetical name which has since become - SHERWOOD - and which is from the Anglo-Saxon scire - a shire - and wudu - a wood. That the name SHERWOOD is a very old one does not admit of a doubt. Indeed, it is safe to say that few surnames can lay claim to a greater antiquity.

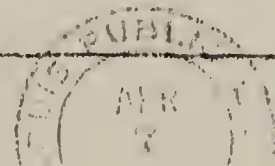

Coat-of-Arms: Argent, a chevron sable between mullets, gules.
Crest: A dexter hand ppr., holding the branch of a rose tree argent, leaved vert.
Motto: Dieu Me Conduise.

THOMAS SHERWOOD, the American Pioneer and the founder of the Sherwood family in New England, was born in England in 1586. His birth-place was probably some place in the interior, where we have never as yet learned. So it is that we have to content ourselves for the present with the knowledge that on April 10, 1634, he sailed from Ipswich on the east coast of England, in the ship "Francis" of which John Cutting was the Master; that he had with him his wife Alice and the four youngest of his eight children - Anna (Hannah), Rose, THOMAS, and Rebecca. He was forty-eight years old and his wife forty-seven; Hannah fourteen; Rose eleven; THOMAS, Jr ten; and Rebecca nine. That four children were left behind - Jane; Tamsen (Thomasina); Mary and Sarah. These children were left in the care of Robert Seabrook. Among the list of passengers of the "Francis" it is known that there were no others of the Sherwood name.

Some time in June the "Francis" dropped anchor in Plymouth harbor, where the "Mayflower" had anchored only fourteen years before. After landing, Thomas resided for a time in Boston and it was while living in Massachusetts that his wife Alice died. He moved to Connecticut and records show his name on many transactions there. He was in Fairfield as early as 1644, and erected the first grist-mill on what was then the Sasqua, but thenceforth the Mill River (see Schenck's History of Fairfield), Vol 1, p. 46; he was at Wethersfield in 1649-50 and he bought land at Barlow's Plain, Fairfield in 1650. And again at, or near Fairfield in a place known as Hull's Farms in 1653. There he died in 1655 at the age of 69.

He married (2) Mary, who was the eight child of Thomas and Anna Reeve Fitch of Bocking, Essex, England - and who came to America in 1638-9. They are thought to have come on the same ship as Robert Seabrook, who brought his family and the four older Sherwood children. Of this second marriage there were six children - Stephen, Matthew, Mary, Ruth, Abigail and Isaac.

With Roger Ludlow, Thomas Sherwood served as Deputy to the General Court so he must have been a competent man. He left a considerable estate for the time. His will "Proved October ye 25th. 1655" is in Liber 1, Folio 109-11, Fairfield, Connecticut Probate Records. In it he leaves money and property to his wife Mary and his fourteen children. He left to his son THOMAS - "five acres of upland lying upon the north end of Sasqua Neck" This land is close to Stratford, Connecticut.

SHERWOOD.

THOMAS SHERWOOD(Jr)., fifth child and only son of the marriage of Thomas and Alice Sherwood, came to America with his parents in 1634. He was one of the earliest settlers of Stratford, Conn., and is known to have been ther as early as 1639. He married Sarah, daughter of Robert Seabrook. He was Deputy to the General Court at Hartford. He died June 4, 1657.

In the summer of 1780, a large marauding party led by the British Colonel Carleton made an incursion from

The first American Settlers of the Johnson family were Edward, William and JOHN JOHNSON, sons of William Johnson of Herne Hill, near Canterbury, England. They were of the landed gentry. Edward founded Woburn, Mass., but later returned to England where he inherited a large estate. He was the author of books on the colony. William settled in Charlestown and JOHN in Roxbury. They are thought to have come in the fleet with John Winthrop, which arrived in Salem, Mass., June 22, 1630.

JOHN JOHNSON brought his wife and five children with him. He was probably born prior to 1600, as his eldest son was married in 1637. He settled in Roxbury, Mass., where he was chosen constable, Oct 19, 1630, and was made a freeman, May 19, 1631. He was one of the founders of the church in July 1632 of which the Rev. John Eliot was the first pastor; and he was one of the embryo parliament of that year. He was Deputy at the first General Court in 1634, and for fifteen years afterwards; and a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company in 1638; was clerk of the company for three years and surveyor-general of all the arms and ammunition.

Captain Johnson was a "very industrious and faithful man in his place," kept a tavern in Roxbury street where many public meetings were held and was a man of great esteem and influence. On Feb 6, 1645 this tavern with all the out buildings was burned with seventeen barrels of powder and ammunition which was stored there, the explosion shaking the houses in Boston and Cambridge, as an earthquake. At this fire the first books of records of Roxbury and the school charter were destroyed.

He died in Roxbury Sept 30, 1659. He married (1) Marjery..... who died June 9, 1655 in Roxbury. Their children were:

ISAAC, born ca 1614, married, Jan 20, 1637 Elizabeth Porter

The Indian War of 1675-76 "Philip's War" was the severest ordeal through which New England was to pass. The intrepid Captain Isaac Johnson, with five other captains, was killed while storming the Narragansett stronghold, when the fierce tribe was destroyed at the famous Fort fight, Dec 19, 1675. Like all train-band captains, he was a man of distinguished social position.

JOHNSON.

MARY ELIZABETH JOHNSON, daughter of Dr. Ebenezer and Sally Maria Johnson was born in Buffalo, N.Y. Jan 6, 1812 when the place was a mere hamlet. She was educated at Miss Williard's School in Troy, N.Y. At a reception given to Lafayette when he visited there in 1826, she had the honor of being kissed by the Marquis as being the least of the school girls. She held a position of influence in her parent's attractive home and it was there that JOHN C. LORD, then a young lawyer of ambition, met and won her. In the midst of a party at the "Cottage" they eloped, she leaving a note that read "the Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away, Blessed be the name of the Lord". She had a nature that was as original as it was generous and loyal. Her wit and humor was never dissociated from sympathy with every form of suffering. Long before the world has ever heard of Henry Bergh, she was in herself a whole society for the prevention of cruelty to animals. For this trait she received the "Diploma of Honor" of the Humane Society of Turin, Italy. She also supported every project for the alleviation of human suffering. Her six-horse team of Shetland ponies was long a feature of Buffalo.

She married Dec 9, 1828, JOHN CHASE LORD, son of the Rev John May and Sarah Chase Lord. They adopted as their only child her niece, FRANCES JOHNSON, born Nov 7, 1828. Mary Johnson Lord died in Buffalo, May 26, 1885.

FRANCES JOHNSON LORD married WILLIAM CHARLES SHEPWOOD.

Note: From a clipping from the Buffalo papers of the period.

"The finest display of pure-blooded Shetland ponies ever exhibited at the Fair Grounds in Buffalo are the property of Mrs. Dr. John C. Lord. The choicest in diminutive size were imported at great expense by Mrs. Lord from the most northern Shetland Isles. They were said to be the smallest ever shipped from the port of Glasgow. In March, Mrs. Lord sent Mr. William Simpson to Scotland to purchase them. The ponies were brought here on a sailing vessel which took 40 to 50 days enroute. Mrs. Lord exhibited fifteen ponies at the Fair Grounds. One of the ponies now in Mrs. Lord's possession was bought of Queen Victoria's own stock for $ 1000." JOHNSON.

JESSE JOHNSON, born Nov 7, 1745 in Middletown, Conn., was a farmer and the curing of beef for use at sea was an important adjunct in his business life. He lived at Middletown and Chatham until 1804, when he considered it best to remove his two young sons from the temptation of following the sea, that had taken the life of his eldest son five years before. Through the influence and assistance of a fellow-townsmen, Joseph White, M.D. who had left Chatham on the completion of his medical course and in 1787 had settled in Cherry Valley, N.Y., Jesse Johnson purchased a farm a mile and one-half south of that village and built a house there and in the summer of 1804, moved his family and all their worldly goods. He was elected an elder of the Presbyterian Church and held that office until he died Apr 30, 1832. He married (1) Mary, daughter of John and Susannah Savage Stevenson, Feb 17, 1769. She was born in Middletown, March 11, 1747 and died in Cherry Valley, Nov 23, 1809. He married (2) Abigail Goodwin, born Butler, Oct 1751. After Jesse Johnson's death she returned to Madison, N.Y., where she died at the home of her son, Samuel Goodwin, Jr., Oct 31, 1834.

She married Jan 25, 1811, Dr. Ebenezer Johnson, son of Captain Ebenezer and Deborah Lathrop Johnson. They went to the village of Buffalo, N.Y. to live. On Dec 13, 1813, when the village was burned by the British and Indians, she escaped with her infant daughter to Williamsville, returning as soon as safety was assured. She followed extreme hardships until they could rebuild and refurnish a home. At the time of her death, Mar 7, 1834, this tribute to her gracious character was written - "the poor of this city have lost a benefactress, the extent of whose multitude charities will never be known....., who used wealth not in fashionable display, but in advancing every good work. She was a sincere and devoted christian, who by a life of active benevolence, furnished proof of the power and reality of religion".

"His home, the Cottage and Park, as his mansion and the grounds were known, long were landmarks of the splendor and opulence he lived in. He maintained the estate for many years, the large park ornamented with trees, shrubs, walks, waterfalls, deer feeding within the grounds. This sort of baronial home of the family marked the boundary between the native forest and the incipient city."

CAPTAIN EBENEZER JOHNSON was born in Massachusetts in 1760 and went to sea at an early age and was in the privateer service during the greater part of the American Revolution, although for a time he acted as Deputy Commissioner for the land forces. He was in sixteen actions at sea and was taken prisoner seven times. For three months he was confined to the prison ship "Jersey" where prisoners were starved and ill-treated and only a few survived. He obtained command of a privateer and saw action in the West Indies. He was one of the defenders of New London when it was attacked by the British under Benedict Arnold Sept 6, 1781. After the Revolution, he abandoned the sea and settled in Wells, Vermont. He removed to Utica, N.Y., in 1794 and in 1795 to Casenovia where he built a large brick house on the public square, which became the first tavern in the town, known as the Johnson House. LORD.

Coat-of-Arms: Argent, on a fesse gules, between three cinque-foils azure, a hind passant between two pheons or.
Crest: A demi-bird gable, on head two horns 6r; wings expanded the dexter outside gules, lined argent; the sinister argent, lined gules.
Motto: A Fair Field and No Favor.

Note: From Burke and Berry - also America Heraldica, p. 22.

Some antiquarians suppose this coat-of-arms, from it's form to have been one of the few granted by Edward the Confessor. Some of the Lord families claim that the name was originally De Laward and that our ancestor was one of the chief officers of William the Conqueror. Said to be on the Great Scroll of England.

THOMAS LORD, with his wife Dorothy, daughter of Robert Bird, and seven children, sailed April 29, 1635 for America on the ship "Elizabeth and Ann". Thomas was fifty years old, Dorothy forty-six, Thomas, Jr sixteen, Anne Fourteen, WILLIAM twelve, John ten, Robert nine, Lymie six and Dorothy four years.

They went to Newtown, afterwards Cambridge, to join their eldest son Richard (born 1611) who had settled there in 1632. The historian Savage thinks that Richard was sent out in 1632 to select lands, etc., for his father's friends the Rev. Thomas Hooker and Mr. (afterwards Governor) Haynes. Thomas and Dorothy are supposed to have come from County Essex, England, from their close friendship with Governor Haynes of Copford Hall and the Rev Thomas Hooker, of Chelmsford, both in County Essex.

In 1636, the Lords, with a large company, accompanied the Rev Hooker to form a settlement on the Connecticut River and Thomas Lord and his son Richard became original Proprietors of Hartford, Connecticut. The son Richard was a patentee of Connecticut under Charter of Charles II (paper still in the family - also deeds of lands) on Eight-Mile River and Tantomohage Hill, belonging to Thomas and his family, are still in possession of Lord descendants by the name of Sill, Griswold, etc.

Records of Deeds - Lyme, New London, Waterbury, Hartford, etc.

Thomas Lord died before 1661 - his widow Dorothy Bird Lord executed her last will Feb 8, 1669 - sealed with arms - doubtless one she had from her husband, corresponding exactly to those of Laward (Lord) given in Berry's Encyclopedia and Burke's Armory. Will is in Connecticut State Library, Probate Division. The above from Heraldic Journal # I.

WILLIAM LORD, born in England in 1623 was the 4th child and 3rd son of Thomas and Dorothy Bird Lord. He married (1) Sarah..... by whom he has seven children. Married (2) in 1664, Lydia Brown; issue - seven children. He died in 1678.

RICHARD LORD, 3rd son of the marriage of William and Sarah Lord, was born in 1647. He married in 1683, Elizabeth Hyde; they had nine children. Lieutenant Richard Lord died Aug 20, 1727 and was buried in Old Lyme, Conn.

All his family are buried in the old cemetery in North Lyme. John married (1) Hannah, daughter of Lieut. Joseph Rogers. She died Dec 25, 1762. By this marriage there were five daughters and one son. He married (2) Sarah and had two sons, Samuel and Andrew Hyde.

He was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1799, entered the ministry and married Nov 12, 1804, Sarah, daughter of the Honorable Moses and Hannah Brown Chase. She was born Oct 9, 1781 in Cornish, N.H. The Rev. John Way Lord died Aug 23 1839. Sarah Chase Lord died March 6, 1852 in Pike, N.Y. Both are buried in Buffalo, N.Y. They had nine children - six sons and three daughters.

JOHN CHASE LORD, born Aug 9, 1805 in Washington, N.H. was the eldest son of John Way and Sarah Chase Lord. When he was five years old his parents moved to Burlington, Orange County, N.Y. He was sent to school in Plainfield, N.H. at the age of twelve and received his early education at Union Academy, which was founded by his uncle the Hon. Daniel Marshall. In 1822 he entered Hamilton College; in 1825 he began the study of law in Buffalo, N.Y. and was admitted to the bar in 1828. Although he practiced this profession for a few years, his desire to become a minister was paramount and he entered Auburn Seminary. History of Western New York - by Cutter.

FRANCE JOHNSON LORD married WILLIAM CLARENCE SHEPHERD, Sept 16, 1844.

Although our line descends from William, younger brother of Richard Lord, this is a bit of interesting history about the family.

RICHARD LORD, was a prominent man in the town and colony, a merchant of considerable fortune, he organized and was Captain of the first Connecticut troop of horse in the Colonies. He supported the troop for almost two years himself, it being formed from three towns. He was elected Representative at Hartford - 1657-59 and 1659-61. Sir Thomas Temple in reporting to the government of the prominent colonists, spoke of Captain Lord as "one of the most considerable persons of these parts." The name of Richard Lord appears as one of the body corporate to whom King Charles granted the Charter of Connecticut, April 23, 1662 - about a month previous to the death of Captain Lord. His tombstone is still to be seen in the old cemetery, New London, Conn., inscribed with the following:

Captain RICHARD LORD

Dyed May ye 17th, 1662, Aetatis S V ae 61.

The bright Starre of our chivallrie lyes here
Unto the State a counsellour full deere
And to ye truth a friend of sweet contente
To Hartford Towne a silver ornament
Who can deny to poore he was reliefe
And in composing paroxies he was chiefe
To marchantes as a patterne he might stand
Adventring dangers new, by sea and land

Caulkins, in his History of New London remarks that this is the oldest inscribed stone east of the Connecticut River.

Trumbull also quotes the above inscription in his History of Connecticut, Vol I.

MADEIRA.

The instability characterizing the orthography of surnames prior to the 19th. century was noticeable in that of the Madeiras, which appeared in many forms, among others: Madeira, Madori, Madery, Medary, Madera, etc.

The name itself is Spanish, originating in the province of Estramadura in Spain. During the reign of the "Holy Roman Emperor" - Charles V (1519-1558) some of the family became Protestants and emigrated to the Low Countries in Holland, the refuge then for those not of the Catholic faith. The family remained in Europe until the early part of the 18th. century, when they came to America.

Coat-of-Arms: Azure, three triangles argent. A Baron's helmet with a Maltese cross suspended from back - indicating a Knight Defender of the island during the memorable siege of 1565.

HANS JACOB MADEIRA, the immediate ancestor, came to Pennsylvania with many other Palantines in the ship "Loyal Judith," Captain Edward Painter, from Rotterdam, which arrived in Philadelphia Sept 3, 1739. The family settled in Montgomery County, taking up a large tract of land near Germantown and were affiliated with the Reformed congregation, worshipping at the church at Market Square, Germantown. He later became a member of the First German Reformed Church at Frankford, and his name appears among the list of contributors to the erection of the church, of which the cornerstone was laid May 4, 1770. He and his wife appear as sponsors at the baptism of their grandchildren at the First Reformed Church of Philadelphia as early as 1765.

JOHN LANIER, born 1655, was the first Lanier who came to Virginia from England. His first home was near the southern banks of the James River, a few miles above Jamestown, in Brunswick County. This was the outbreak that preceded Bacon's Rebellion. At this time, John Lanier was twenty-five years old, so it is reasonable to suppose that he was prominent in affairs as a young man. Few surnames are older in Scotland than the name of LOGAN.

Tradition in the family is that their ancestors were of the Presbyterian faith and that during the time of the Covenanters, to escape the bloody persecutions of that period, they fled to Protestant North Ireland, settling in Lurgan, County Anagh. James and DAVID Logan, who emigrated from there are our first LOGAN ancestors in America. They received grants of land in Pennsylvania, settling there for a few years, moving then to Virginia.

DAVID LOGAN, settled near New Providence Church in what is now Rockbridge County. He married Jane Loyall before 1740, when he appeared at the Orange Courthouse to claim land. In the record of the Rev. John Craig, the first minister in the valley, he baptized Benjamin, child of David Logan May 3, 1743 and Hugh Logan, March 24, 1745. David Logan died in 1757.

Records show that in 1763, Jane Logan, widow of David Logan, lived at Kerr's Creek and that she had sons, Benjamin, Hugh, John and Nathaniel - daughters, Mary and Sarah. Ben, the eldest son was fourteen when his father died and under the prevailing law, inherited the modest estate. As soon as he came into the property, he sold it and divided the money equally between his brothers and sisters. He and one of the brothers took from their share enough to buy some of the best land on one of the forks of the James River, building a house there for their mother. She and the younger children were left in charge of Hugh. Ben and John Logan were soldiers in the Bouquet Expedition; Ben a non-commissioned officer and John a private. Ben Logan married Anne Montgomery in 1765 and John married Jane McClure and both settled on the Holston River in north-western Virginia.

JOHN LOGAN, was born in Rockbridge County, Va., (ca 1749). His actual birth-date is not of record. He married Jane McClure, who was of the same Scotch-Irish ancestry as he was and who lived in the same community on the Holston that he did. He went to Kentucky with his brother Ben and John Todd in 1775 when they established St. Asaph's Station, one of the three permanent stations which were first built in Kentucky. He was a great Indian fighter. In 1781, he helped his brother Ben organize the first regiment of militia in Lincoln County, later becoming Colonel of the regiment. He was a member of the first court ever organized in Kentucky, at Harrodsburg; he was three times a representative of Kentucky in the Virginia Assembly before Kentucky attained statehood in June 1792. He helped frame the constitution of the state and was the first Treasurer, holding that office for sixteen years and during that same period was Senator from 1792 to 1797. Colonel John Logan died in Frankfort, Ky., in 1807; Jane McClure Logan some time later. Their children were:
